Artrain is here City expects many visitors

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The streets are swept, parking is improved, windows shine with the effort of polishing and the entire downtown area of Romulus glows with the hard work of local citizens who want to look their best for the multitude of visitors expected this week.

Artrain chugged into the city Monday evening, and as the first stop on a state tour, Romulus merchants, residents and civic leaders made every effort to spruce up for the hundreds of people expected to flock to the traveling museum parked in the downtown section of the city.

"A hell of a lot of people will be in Romulus to visit Artrain," said Bill Crane, president of the Downtown Development Authority. He also added that he is astonished at the transformation of the downtown area. "It's more than anyone realized," he added.

Artrain has four gallery cars and a caboose filled with cultural treasures. Romulus has been honored as the first stop of a 25-city tour commemorating the Michigan Sesquicentennial. The theme of the exhibition is "The Cranbrook Vision: Past and Present," which includes furniture, architectural designs and decorative arts. Artists including many from local area will "display their talents."

Artrain is located on the railroad tracks in downtown Romulus, south of Goddard Road behind the new post office and the old schoolhouse. Parking is provided by the DDA and the Department of Public Works. The DPW labored for long hours to clear debris, level land and pour new concrete sidewalks. Local businesses made substantial donations for the Artrain visit. Most recently, according to Arts Council member, Kris Detroyer, Chevrolet provided 700 gallons of needed fuel oil and Wally Pociask of K and D Industrial Services will transport it. "Everyone wants to be involved," she added.

Mayor Beverly McAnally has watched progress at the Artrain site daily. She summed up local sentiment when she said, "We're very excited. When you see everybody involved, it's a small community at its best. It's like we're having company and getting our house cleaned. There's so much pride in this city, it's great."

Artrain is sponsored by both the Michigan and Downriver Council for the Arts, the City of Romulus, the Romulus Arts

Council, The Romulus Historical Society, the Chessie Railroad System and many many others. Tours will be conducted on Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Neighbor rescued from fire

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The Strohshein family of Barry Street lost many prized possessions and two beloved pets earlier this month when their house caught on fire. But Ruby Crabtree, 73, got out alive, thanks to the fast thinking and heroic efforts of her next door neighbor, Larry Bellottie.

"Anybody else would have done the same," said Bellottie modestly. "When Eric, her grandson, came over, I knew something was wrong. I was scared. I'm just thankful she was just down the hallway. I wouldn't have been able to go in too far. I took three or four steps and pulled her out. We've been neighbors for almost eight years. I didn't even know the woman's name."

Whether he knew the woman's name or not, didn't seem to matter. "My grandma and I were home alone when I noticed smoke from the behind the drier. The phone didn't work and I ran next door. In that short time, smoke filled the house. I thought the whole house was going to go up," Eric, 16, recalled.

"He rushed over here and said there was a fire and his grandmother was in the house. The smoke was so thick you couldn't see the street from here," Bellottie said.

Louise Strohshein said the situation was complicated by her mother's physical condition. "Mother suffers from Alzheimer's disease. She wasn't hurt. But I don't think she really knew what was happening. She often forgets. We lost our 9 year-old beagle "Seger" and mom's parakeet during the fire. Fireman carried our other "Scrappy" out from under the kitchen table. Larry was super. He and his family have just been great to us," she said.

Louise, her husband, George, and their other daughter, Christina, were not home at the time.

According to Louise, the house damage has been estimated by the insurance company at about $15,000, and the cause of the fire has been determined to have been electrical.

Luckily, she added, she lost only about 20 of her collection of more than a hundred music boxes including a Santa who sings and a hobo who whistles. Water damaged only one box of Eric's collection of 3,000 comic books.

"I really didn't do much. I just helped her out," said Bellottie who lives with his wife, Pat, and three children. He works as a train control operator with Chessie System.

Another neighbor, John Drouillard called Bellottie a "good Samaritan." "He should be cited with bravery. Nobody seems to pay attention to a hero anymore," he said.

The Stroshein family expects to return to their home within three weeks.

Treasurer wants accountability from city council members

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Did members of the Romulus City Council overstep their bounds when they approved the deposit of money into an account that does not have the city treasurer's name on it?

Treasurer John Lewkowicz seems to think so. Almost three months have passed since the Tax Increment Finance Authority entered into an agreement with developer Wendall Flynn regarding his Airline Parking Project.

The agreement by council members gave Mayor Beverly McAnally the authority to approve the incomplete "Flynn Drive" pending city engineer approval. Flynn was to deposit money into a TIFA account to ensure completion of the project. Lewkowicz claims $448,000 was deposited into this account.

His name however, is not on

"This is strict violation of city charter. This was done without my approval or knowledge."

—John Lewkowicz

the account and he wants to know why. "This is strict violation of city charter. Flynn, his wife, Matt Raftary and the mayor are listed on the account.

Raftary, city assessor and TIFA treasurer, said TIFA can do nothing without approval by members of city council. "This project was undertaken by TIFA. We have a treasurer because there is a need for one. The treasurer's concern is unfounded."

Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks told council, "There are a number of questions regarding TIFA monies and the Flynn project. Flynn placed the money in escrow. It is his money and not the city of Romulus'. This was all arranged by the city attorney."

"If names need to be changed, they will," said McAnally. "We did that to expedite the situation with Flynn. The money is in no jeopardy. This will get sorted out eventually. Why didn't Mr. Lewkowicz bring this to our attention before?"

"The city does not need four treasurers. My name should be on that account," said Lewkowicz.

TIFA chairperson Theresa Washington has called a meeting of the board for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in city hall where the matter will be discussed. "The matter will be cleared up then," she said.

Romulus fire chief resigns post

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Fire Chief James Haislip has resigned his $5,200 per year, part-time position following a request by Mayor Beverly McAnally that he assume the job on a full-time basis. His resignation becomes effective at the end of the month.

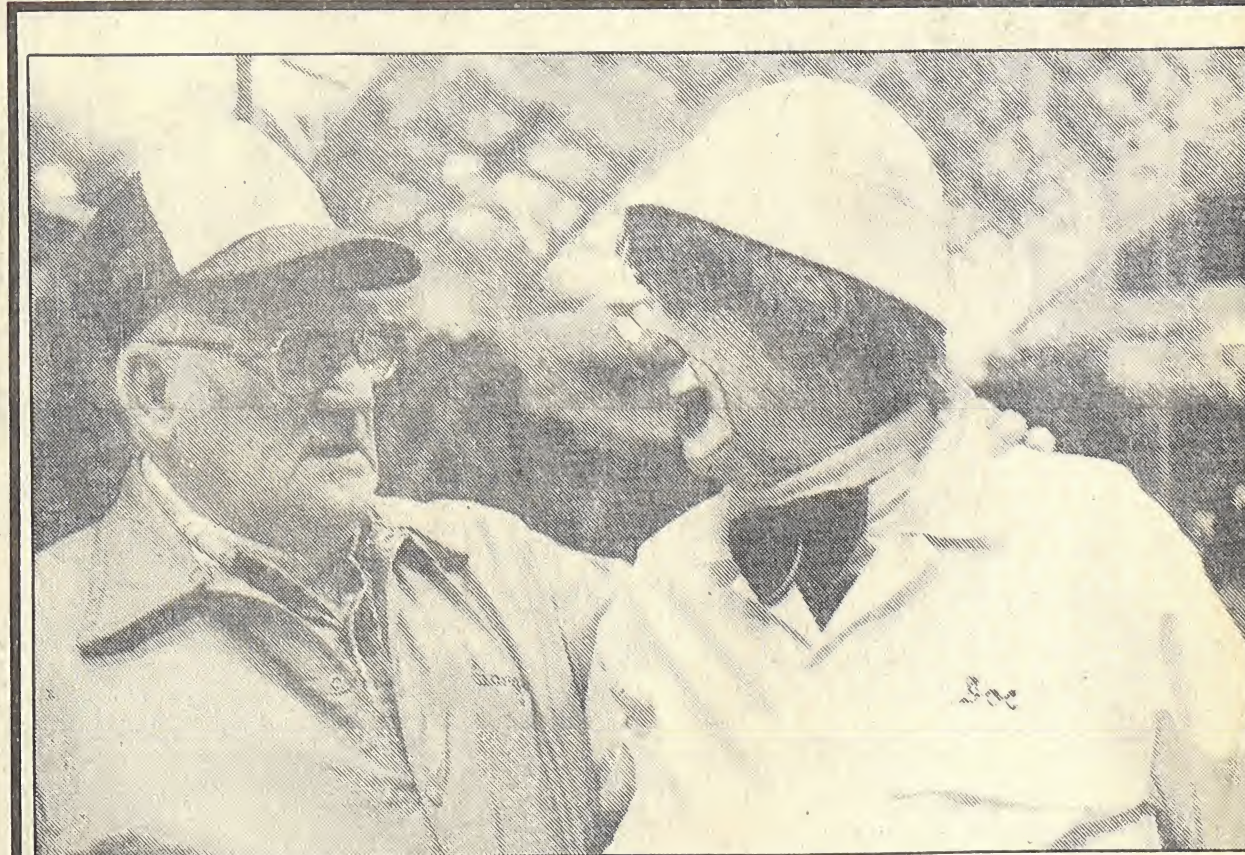

According to McAnally, money was budgeted for a full-time position this year. The new budget goes into effect July 1. "We need to plan for the future growth of the department. Jim said he would not be able to give up his full-time job. We're advertising for the position but if we are able we always want to promote from within," she said. The full-time position will pay an estimated $30,000 per year.

Haislip became part-time fire chief in 1982, assuming the duties of the former full-time fire chief, according to Assistant Fire Chief Bob Pecsénye. At that time, a full-time fire inspector position was established.

Charles Bradley, fire inspector, the only present full-time employee on the all-volunteer fire department said, "There are still plenty of experienced Romulus fireman. The department will not be left short-handed. We will be fine."

Local Shriner clowns around

Uncharacteristically out of uniform, Romulus Shriner, George "Sarge" Witzgall, takes time out from his duties as owner of the Polka Dot Party Store on Goddard Road to ham it up with a fellow clown during their stay at the State Fair Coliseum. The circus will be in town through Saturday. According to his wife, Delores, he's never missed a show in 30 years except for a funeral and jury duty. "He's always a clown," she said. # Spring festival!

Romulus High School students wasted no time welcoming in the new spring season with their Spring Festival. According to senior Teri Tank, each day of the past week was filled with some strange, but fun, activities, usually a lunchtime competition, guys against the girls. Monday students wore maroon and white and attempted to eat as many oranges as they could. Tuesday was green or flower day and students feasted on licorice. Wednesday was dress-up day. Thursday was hobo or clash day followed by a cola drinking contest. Friday, students gathered for an assembly, sported shorts and sunglasses and

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Suzanne Sommers does it. So do Phillis Rashad of the Bill Cosby Show, and even 90 year-old George Burns makes time for it, according to several posters pasted on the walls of Beacon School in Romulus. What do they do? They read.

And now Shellie Moore, educational coordinator, wants

Beacon students to do it.

The Michigan Reading Association proclaimed March to be reading month and teachers and students alike are vigorously pursuing the former favorite pastime of Americans.

The halls of Beacon School on Olive Street are decorated with all kinds of creative hand-drawn and printed posters proclaiming the glories of reading. Several reading themes were displayed throughout showcases in the building by energetic students. One in particular celebrates the March 2 birthday of Dr. Suess.

Around one corner slithers a paper worm with student names and the books they've read written on each individual section. "We hope to go all the way down the hall," Moore predicted.

"There's a whole new emphasis on literacy," she added. "This is the year of the reader and we intend to make the most of it."

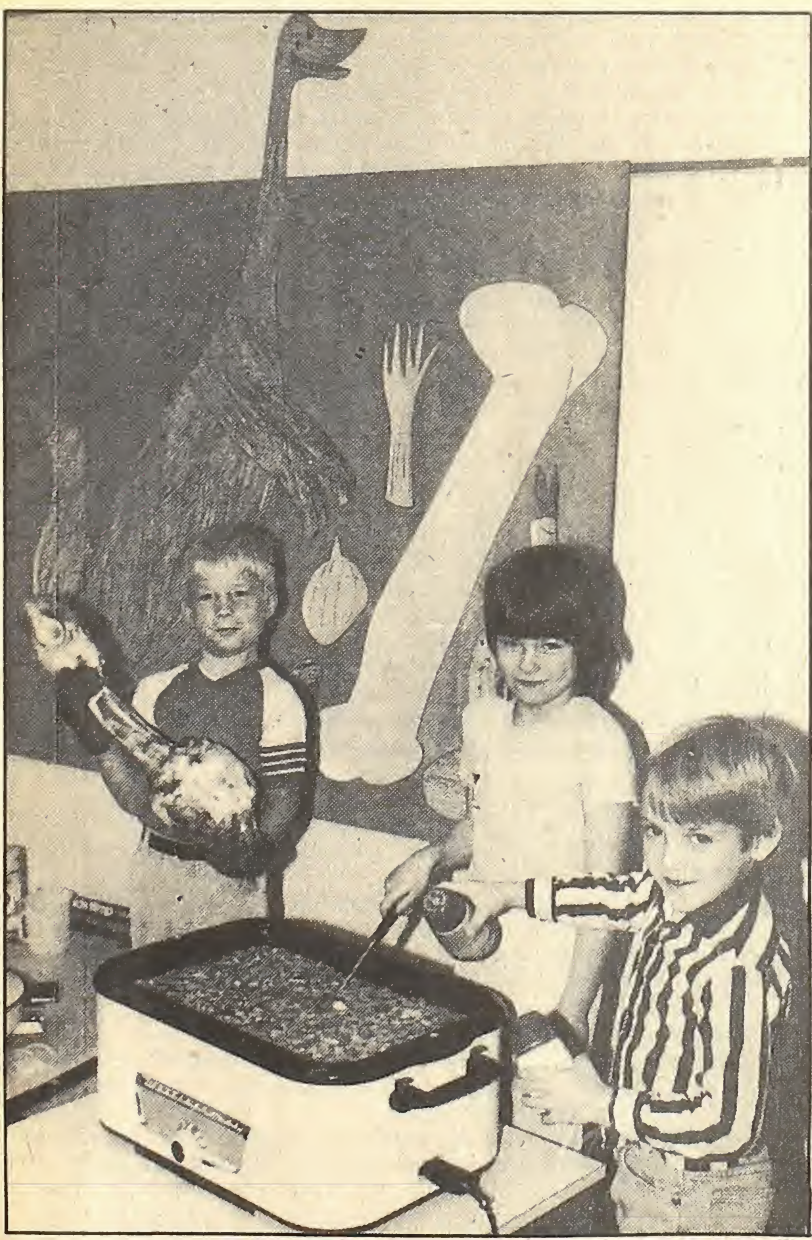

According to Moore, Michigan adopted a new definition of reading in 1983. At that time, reading specialists determined that just spelling a word and sounding it out weren't enough but of equal importance is the ability of students to understand the meaning of a word.

"We want students to attain a more sophisticated thinking level. They need background knowledge. If they can sound out rhinoceros, do they know what it is?" she asked.

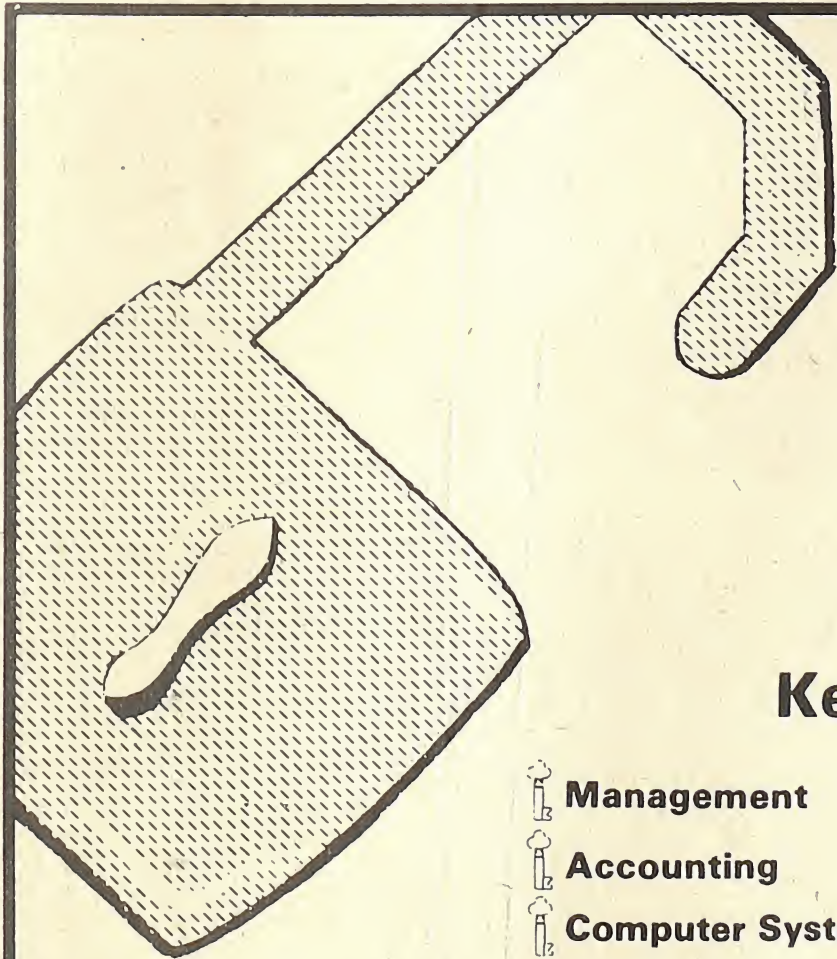

A wide range of reading activities are taking place at Beacon this month. A quiet reading time is set aside each day. Older students are often found reading to their younger schoolmates. At the end of the month there will be a free book giveaway.

Two experienced storytellers captured students' attention with their spellbinding tales during their visit this month.

Is it dinosaur soup yet?

The first-graders at Wick Elementary School in Romulus tested an age-old recipe when they prepared dinosaur soup last Friday. Teacher Sharon Popek said the annual event is among the highlights of the year. Their "secret recipe" is: Simmer 3 quarts of water with 1 small dinosaur bone (large beef bone with meat). Add 3 teaspoons of ground dinosaur bones (bouillon) and 1 pound dinosaur meat (beef) cut up. Cook 1 hour. Add: 4 cut-up rocks (potatoes), 3 cut-up roots (carrots), 2 fern bulbs (onions), 3 stalks leaves and stems (celery) and 1 large can dragonfly eggs (tomatoes). Season with 2 teaspoons clean sand (salt) and 1 teaspoon ground tar (pepper). Simmer together for 3 more hours over an open fire or electric stove. ANP photo by Guy Warren/staff photographer

New life

School revamped

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Sumpter School has a new lease on life — thanks to the citizens of the community who have put time and effort into making it a multi-use facility for area residents.

When the school closed more than 12 years ago, it had an "almost new" addition, according to Township Clerk Joan Oddy. In the years following, a gutter problem caused leaking into the building and, consequently, damage to the interior.

Some controversy followed between the township and school district over the possible demolition of the facility, she said. After some time, the district sold the closed school to the township and residents sought a plan to renovate the damaged interior.

Township residents "adopted" rooms and pledged to be responsible for the cleanup and general maintenance of their areas, the clerk said. Early on Saturday, the residents descended on the school with cleaning equipment and began to scrub, clean and fix-up their rooms. This continued for seven weekends in a row until the project was finished, she said. Private donors and businesses also pledged their aid to the clean-up project and contributed time and materials.

Following the clean-up, plaques naming the residents who had adopted each room will be placed on the doors of the former classrooms. The south wing is being renovated for the police department and a clinic has expressed interest in renting a portion of the building.

The project has provided an important addition to the township and the spirit with which the work was accomplished so serves as an inspiration, the clerk said.

Zoning appeals expense prompt increase in fees

Fees to appear before the Van Buren Township Zoning Board of Appeals will be boosted to $100 for residents and $125 for commercial and industrial representatives.

The previous fee of $50 was inadequate to cover expenses, according to Clerk Delphine Dudick. She estimated the meeting cost to be $235 which includes $180 for the commission members, $40 for publication and related costs and $15 for mailings.

In a communication to the board of trustees, Dudick noted that there were approximately 30 paid appeals heard at 13 meetings for a total of $1,500 paid to the township. Expenses for the meetings were estimated to be $3,055, or $1,555 less than the revenues. With the new fees, Dudick said, the amount collected for service fees would total $3,175.

No action taken on liquor license for store

No action was taken on a request for a liquor license by the Shop Qwik Convenience Stores, Inc. at 524 Main St., Belleville.

The city attorney was instructed to draft a letter to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission notifying it that no action can be taken until the building is completed.

The store owners are requesting a Specially Designated Distributor (SDD) license which would permit the sale of alcoholic liquor for consumption off the premises. The request was made for the license to be obtained in conjunction with a proposed beer and wine license.

The applicant must comply with all appropriate state and local building, plumbing, zoning, fire, sanitation and health laws and ordinances before approval can be given for either license.

A matter of choice

The condom advertisements on television have caused me a great deal of worry lately. That's not precisely correct--what has caused my concern is the number of would-be censors who seem so up-in-arms regarding this first birth control method ever to hit the airwaves.

Those protesting the ads say they will promote a number of sinful acts: sex between unmarried men and women, sex between teenage girls and boys, sex between adult women and teen boys, sex between married men and single women....The list goes on exponentially for about every kind of sexual liaison you can imagine.

The combination in particular that bothers the "anti condomists" is that of men having sex with men; also known as homosexuality. It is because of this group and the deadly virus plaguing it, that condoms have made their debut on television.

It is interesting to note that in this context, condoms are endorsed as death control, not birth control. Are you listening "anti-condomists?" Or do you feel that anyone who would engage in such a sex act deserves to die?

I do not argue here for homosexuality or for the use of devices and medicines to prevent pregnancies or for the termination of an embryonic life in a woman's womb. What I do argue for is something called CHOICES.

To anyone who doubts the great potential harm of allowing one group to take away the freedom of choice from another group, might I suggest reading the book, "The Handmaid's Tale," by Margaret Atwood.

In this chilling novel, she paints a picture of America centuries into the future during the reign of an ultra-right religious group. Under this regime, the government takes the form of an autocracy. Citizens of the country are categorized according to how they can best serve the state. For instance, women capable of bearing children are forced to do only that. Government leaders called, "Commanders" are appointed to father their children, which

A little bit about a lot of things

For a change of pace, I thought this week I would cover a multitude of subjects and in so doing clear my mind of a number of lingering tidbits.

So here goes.

Had my foot x-rayed again and we've concluded that it isn't broken, only some serious soft tissue damage... so, with much discomfort I have gone from crutches, which were driving me crazy, to a limping walk. I have learned a great deal from this experience about the life of the handicapped.

After a bout with a severe case of the feeling crummies, Susan took me to the clinic to check it out. My symptoms had us all wondering, and so I was privileged to experience my first ride in an EMT unit from Westland. My many thanks to Bill and Bruce, the EMTs who aided me, and Susan. These guys are really special and know how to exhibit compassion and understanding with a degree of professionalism and competence that allays the fears while still respecting the seriousness of the situation. I'm sure many others who have dealt with them feel the same way. Thanks just doesn't seem like enough.

Bruce, it seems, was once one of our carrier boys, and remembers well his days of service to our customers. He certainly seems to have learned what service to others is all about.

Received an autographed photograph of President Reagan as a result of my attendance at the presidential briefing. I, for one, thought the president did well during his recent televised press conference. I thought the woman reporter should be ashamed of herself for her "sucker punch" immediately following her closing "Thank you, Mr. President" which traditionally ends reporters' questions at the news conferences.

Just as the president dropped his mental guard, she hit him with the George Bush question. Had the question been asked by someone else or if it had been asked during the conference it would not have been offensive.

Just received word that John Galles, executive director of the Small Business Association of Michigan has accepted a comparable position with National Small Business United in Washington, D.C. As the nominee for incoming president of SBAM, I will certainly miss working with John Galles. John's move to NSBU will certainly give Michigan small business owners and operators another friend in Washington. Congratulations John Galles.

The search for a new director for SBAM is now under way, and will no doubt center on prospects who want to live in Lansing. SBAM offices are presently located in Kalamazoo. The decision to move to Lansing was made some time ago, but is now on the front.

Caught Governor Jim Blanchard sitting in the next booth in Lansing two weeks ago after lunch. Had a chance to introduce son Douglas who was helping me gimp around on my crutches during our SBAM board meeting. Doug was on break from Central Michigan in Mt. Pleasant.

Had a chance to hear a roundup recently of business expansion activities in Western Wayne County. I must say that even I was greatly impressed with the volume of growth heading our way. Such news is music to our ears, ... at least until I have to try to navigate back and forth on Wayne Road at peak hours. Yipe!

I found it interesting how many fellow Wayne Rotarians are or are not reading their

Home economics gets special praise

To The Editor:

On behalf of all the Wayne-Westland home economics teachers, I wish to express appreciation for your recent articles regarding changes in Home Economics Education.

In particular, a special thanks to Mark Nicholas for his extra research efforts into "What's New in Home Economics." I am pleased that the Westland Eagle has allowed the association to get the word out concerning recent innovations in home economics.

As you are aware, home economics programs are an important part of secondary education. These courses help students prepare for their future as family members and good citizens. Your articles play an important role in sending this message to the community and the students' parents. Again thank you for your interest and support.

Nicholas earns praise

To The Editor:

Your positive and detailed article about my home economics programs in Wayne-Westland School System was warmly received. My highest compliments to reporter Mark Nicholas for this opportunity to let our community know more about a program that prepares students for many directions in life. Thank you very much for having the good fortune to have Mr. Nicholas on your award-winning newspaper staff! I definitely appreciated the kindness, accuracy and enthusiasm for the educational process that was demonstrated as Mr. Nicholas talked to me about all the innovative and new curriculum directions that we are taking in the Wayne-Westland home economics program.

The opportunity to give the community positive exposure to our school system certainly helps all of us who are dependent on public support to help keep our programs successful. Once again your professional efforts are greatly appreciated. Thank you very much!

Pet owners have responsibility

To The Editor:

As a reader of this paper, I have read many letters from other readers on all kinds of subjects. What I am about to say is not about politics, events, or millages! This is about the responsibility of being a "Pet Owner". We all do love our pets but loving them also means protecting them. How? Spaying, neutering and most of all licensing.

Many of our dogs and cats run off at one time or another, someone left the gate open, etc. The first thing most of us will probably do is to place an ad in the lost and found! Then we will just wait for a call that someone found our dog or cat. Most likely this also will happen: the animal gets hit by a car, and the most common thing: the dogcatcher will spot your pet roaming the streets, he will pick it up and take it to the Humane Society Shelter.

If your pet has no license tag or any ID on its collar the shelter will not be able to locate your pet's owner, therefore, they will have to keep it in their lost and found section for four days.

After four days no one claiming the animal, it will be either adopted out or put to sleep! And putting it to sleep does not mean to tuck Fido or Kitty in for a good night's sleep, it means the sleep of no return by lethal injection. This also includes pets turned in by their owners who can't keep them anymore or whatever reasons and excuses given.

Please pet lovers, let's unite and show our true love to our faithful friends and repay them for their loyalty and love by protecting them from this by having your pet spayed, neutered and most of all licensing and ID on their collars!

Taxpayer has questions

To The Editor:

Almost weekly, our local papers inform us of the ongoing conflict between the Canton Clerk, the Supervisor and the board of trustees. The most recent dispute involved something about minutes, agendas, George Washington and elephants. Try as I may, the issues totally escape my comprehension.

As an ignorant, but dutiful taxpayer, I assumed the functions of these elected officials were to run the township for us and help it achieve proper and prosperous growth with the welfare of its residents as the prime concern. Can someone explain what any of this commotion is about or what on earth it has to do with any of the aforementioned functions?

My taxes have just gone up again. That's good, I want to be sure there is plenty of money available to pay township employees to "float" with no real job designated for them--due to the unclear whim of an elected official.

Are these shenanigans all our trusted, elected officials have to do? What will, or can, any of this accomplish? Do they have this much time on their hands? Do we need them? Can, or will, anyone answer these questions?

Is anyone else asking?

The 150th Anniversary of Michigan is a time to honor our past and build for the future. It is a time to take pride in our community and in the contributions of individual citizens who make up this state's diverse population.

In order to help celebrate Michigan's Sesquicentennial and to highlight and recognize the special contributions of women to their communities and our state, First Lady Paula Blanchard has introduced the "Michigan 150 First Lady Award." The award will honor 150 women from across the state who have given much but received little in the way of recognition. It is cosponsored by the Michigan Women's Commission and the Michigan Sesquicentennial Commission as well as other state agencies.

While the award is designed to celebrate widely unrecognized accomplishments of today's Michigan women, it will also educate the public, including young people, about Michigan women and involve women throughout the state in the Sesquicentennial celebration. In addition, a biographical collection of the 150 recipients of the award - the Michigan 150 First Ladies - will be published and distributed to Michigan schools and libraries for recorded history.

The Michigan 150 First Lady

jim kosteva

Award is designed to recognize 150 Michigan women who contribute their time and energy to their community without fail and without fanfare. Selection criteria require a nominee to be a Michigan resident, at least 21 years old, who has performed a significant service to her community largely without recognition. The nominee's contribution to her community, the state or the nation must have a lasting impact. The nominee must have a good community reputation and must be a positive role model for Michigan's youth. The nominee cannot be an elected officeholder.

Nominations for the award will be accepted from representatives of organizations and from individuals and must be submitted to local Sesquicentennial agencies by June 11, 1987.

If you would like to nominate someone for a Michigan 150 First Lady Award, contact your local Sesquicentennial agency, your county board of commissioners or my office in Lansing for a nomination form.

Study supports sale of Medical Center

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

The sale of the Westland Medical Center (WMC), according to an executive summary by the Greater Detroit Area Health Council, was an appropriate action, given projections and analysis executed by the council.

The GDAHC recently completed a study projecting the 1995 level of demand for inpatient medical-surgical acute care in southeast Michigan. The GDAHC found that for western Wayne County, a population decrease of 12 to 32 percent from 1984 utilization levels is projected. This translates into 237,500 to 340,300 patient days worth of unused capacity and an average occupancy of 50 to 65 percent in 1995 for the resources used by this population. The report added that given these circumstances, there is no need for the Westland Medical Center to continue as a general, acute care hospital.

Emergency capability was also explored by the GDAHC. Each of the hospitals in the consortium near Westland (Annapolis, Garden City Osteopathic, Heritage, Oakwood and Outer Drive) is characterized by the Michigan Department of Public Health as an emergency department. The report explained that the EMS system would probably utilize all hospitals in the area, in the event of a large scale disaster. It is believed that there are enough hospitals near the airport and within or near the western Wayne and Downriver communities to handle a major disaster, according to the study.

Based on these conclusions, the health council concluded that the hospital consortium has the physical capacity and resource capabilities to more than adequately meet the health care needs of the county, and had no objections to the sale.

According to Vern Davis-Anthony, director of Health and Community Services, the status of the Westland Medical Center sale is moving along. "Right now, we're still crossing the T's and dotting the I's, on the purchase agreement," she said. The attorneys are still going over the contract, Anthony said. "We should be getting the agreement back from the lawyers in about a week or so."

Once the lawyers have inspected the agreement, it will be presented to the Wayne County Commissioners for study and approval, according to Anthony.

"The approval process could take one or two weeks, depending on the process, because it may have to be reviewed by several committees," she said.

The County Commissioners will also have another agreement to look over, according to Anthony. "Along with the sale agreement, the Wayne County Commissioners will also get the master agreement for indigent care. They will review the indigent care plan for approval as well."

Westland raises not supported

To The Editor:

I have been a resident of Westland since 1968. I and many of you strongly oppose the salary increases for Mr. Griffin and the city council. I don't see any great improvement in services that deserves a raise. Do you?

On the one hand, evidently we don't have enough money for sufficient city services or city workers. Mr. Griffin tells us he will be asking for more millage. On the other hand, as the mayor knows, school officials have already asked for another millage for an adequate education for our children.

Come on Westland! If there is excess money for a raise somewhere, why don't they use it in an area where it is needed most. If more people don't wake up fast and stop this, their awakening won't be as pleasant as was Rip Van Winkles'.

by the way, are taken away at birth and reared by the government. Women not capable of bearing children are sent into toxic waste dumps without protective clothing. There, they clean up the poisonous messes until they, literally, drop dead.

The atrocities committed in the regime portrayed in the "Handmaid's Tale" are all perpetrated in the name of God.

It is my unshakeable belief that a Diety exists - despite what my friends might tell you.

And, that Diety gives us choices.

hometown newspaper. The telling comments were most evident at lunch last Tuesday. Some knew exactly what my predicament was when I hopped in on my crutches from reading my column. Others asked "Gee, what happened to you?" I think some fines are in order, Mr. Seargent-at-arms. Why do I feel this is going to cost me?

As you can tell from the announcements in the paper last week, a number of staff changes are under way at Associated. . . . all will be for the benefit of you, the reader and advertiser. We hope you will bear with us during a period of adjustment.

This week, we are happy to report that Ted Steinberg has joined us on a full-time basis. Ted is a rare talent that will do much to change and improve the look of our newspaper. If you have a design or layout need, we have just that man who can satisfy your needs.

Svitkovitch named as board representative

A local school official will be wearing an additional hat by virtue of an appointment at the Monday evening Board of Education meeting.

Thomas Svitkovitch, associate superintendent for communication and finance for the Wayne-Westland Community School District, was appointed to represent Wayne-Westland Schools, on the Metropolitan Education Commission (MEC). Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said, "Tom is knowledgeable and by bringing his background in finance he will represent the district well, I ask your approval."

Susan and I were fortunate enough to catch a performance of the "Mikado" during our recent Washington visit. The farcical play which is rewritten to be topical is a witty, charming musical view of the of the oriental life served up by a cast of characters that would amuse the most serious minded theatre goer.

This was not my first visit to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, but it always is a rare treat for me. Its location on the Potomac, adjacent to the Watergate complex only adds to the aura that surrounds this monument to President John F. Kennedy.

We also heard the "Capitol Steps" a musical satire group composed of congressional aides who performed for the first time at an office Christmas party as a lark. Now they are paid $8,000 for out of state visits. They are F-u-n-n-y!!

Enough for now. See you next week.

The others said it was hopeless.

Untreatable blindness. That was the diagnosis at an important national eye clinic. Then the patient, suffering from advanced glaucoma and cataracts, came to the Kresge Eye Institute at Harper Hospital. In an exciting procedure, the doctors at Kresge inserted tiny plastic intraocular lenses in his eyes. Today, at age 70, his corrected vision is almost 20/20.

This is not an unusual case. The threat of vision impairment by accident, birth, disease and aging is very close to all of us. Yet, cures and treatments are slow to develop because the process of vision is so very complex. Unraveling the mysteries is the job of the Kresge Eye Institute at Harper Hospital. Dedicated exclusively to the problems of vision, the Institute treats fifty-thousand patients each year, and also performs three-thousand operations. Its research programs develop new paths of understanding. Its clinical practice brings new technology to medicine and refines pioneering treatment techniques for others to follow. This important Detroit Medical Center resource gives present hope to millions with impaired vision.

For more information about the Kresge Eye Institute or to make an appointment, please phone the patient information line given below. The Kresge Eye Institute and Harper Hospital are affiliated with the School of Medicine, Wayne State University and The Detroit Medical Center in delivering world-class quality health care.

Block grants funds approved by board

Two proposals for the disbursement of block grant funds were approved by the Sumpter Township Board following a public hearing.

The first proposal for $75,959 includes $45,000 for fire protection, $9,459 for the community center, $5,000 for parks, $3,000 for minor home repair, $1,500 for the township planner, $8,000 for public service and $4,000 for administrative services.

In the event of a cutback in funds, the township would implement the second proposal which would call for $45,000 for fire protection, $5,741 for the community center, $4,000 for parks, $2,200 for minor home repair, $7,741 for public service, and $2,000 for administrative services.

Block grant funds are disbursed by Wayne County and must meet federal guidelines. The two proposals were required in the event that President Ronald Reagan requests a 12.5 percent reduction in the block grant funding.

Planners to decide

Members of the Belleville Park Commission has many plans for the recreation areas of the city, but they have requested direction from the city council on implementing their ideas.

Councilman Glenn Silvenis will attend the next meeting of the commission at 8 p.m. April 7 to provide input from the council.

System funding adopted

The Van Buren Township Board approved payment of a $1,200 fee to begin studies of the Enhanced 911 telephone emergency service.

When installed, the telephone number and address of a caller will be displayed on a computer at the area emergency center and then relayed to police, fire or rescue services. The enhanced service is said to decrease response time and eliminate the chance of confused or frightened individuals providing a wrong address to public safety dispatchers.

The Enhanced 911 will route calls to the proper dispatcher even if there are different telephone exchanges in the community, according to spokesmen from the Conference of Western Wayne, coordinators of the project.

Radio purchase approved

The purchase of a base station and portable radio for the Belleville Fire Department was authorized by the Belleville City Council.

Funds for the purchases are budgeted. Cost of the base station is $1,800 and purchase price for the portable radio is $850.

Police list cases

The investigative bureau of the Van Buren Police Department had 48 cases assigned in January. The bureau obtained 27 warrants, three juvenile petitions and 34 cases were closed, according to a report submitted to the Van Buren Township Board.

Ed Mahalek

People remember the bow tie

Ed Mahalak still wears a contagious grin and more than that, still sports what he calls an "outstanding bow tie."

"People remember you," he said of his personal trademark for 50 years, the last 30 of which have been in the public eye, 10 as Justice of the Peace in Romulus and 20 as the local Michigan State Representative.

And although local voters might remember his colorful bow tie, they more than likely will recall his longstanding fight for the rights for veterans. And they will undoubtedly remember his stand supporting busing.

There was only a 200 vote difference in the primary election and luckily about an 800 difference in the general election, according to Mahalek.

"Quality education was my goal. The whole thing became vicious and violent. Many politicians used the topic as a political crutch. Everybody is entitled to a good education," he added.

Mahalek and his wife of 43 years, Dolly, were born, raised and married in Wyandotte. "We first met when she was 8 years old. Her brother and I were flying model planes in a contest. We met again while her brother and I were at Fort Custer in basic training. One weekend at the PX, I looked up and there she was. We later met on leave, began to correspond and married after the war in 1946," he summarized. They have two children, Gregory and Denise and one grandchild, Craig.

He attended Wayne State University to study law under the GI Bill. "I still have about a year left. I was so busy being state representative, I didn't have the time. Now that I'm retired, I have even less time," he said.

Friends encouraged him in 1956 to move to Romulus where he was appointed Justice of the Peace, his first political office. Mahalek handled 43,000 criminal cases including five homicides in Romulus during his tenure.

He ran for state Democratic representative in 1964 and remained in that position until a heart attack and open heart surgery forced him to retire in 1984. Jim Kosteva succeeded him.

His district was reapportioned several times and changed from the 37th to the 38th District in 1980 when it included all of Romulus, Wayne, Belleville and the townships of Van Buren and Canton. The old district also included two thirds of Monroe County.

He concedes his greatest accomplishments were with his involvement as chairman with the Military and Veterans Affairs Committee where he was a major sponsor of the Vietnam Bonus Bill.

Mahalek also chaired several House of Representative committees including appropriations and transportation.

He still serves as a consultant with the Veterans committee. He is regional president of the National Model Railroad Association and a member of the Fourth Michigan Infantry of the Civil War.

"I try to keep as active as I can until my doctor tells me I can do better and greater things," he concluded.

Diane Martina

Psychic seen around world

Who says Westland has no really famous people? What about Diane Martina? The nationally syndicated columnist, radio personality and television star, lives right here in Westland.

Martina's television show, "Lifestyle" has been produced locally, since about 1980, and has been seen nationally and world wide, according to Martina. "Lifestyle is seen all over the world, at different times. There are more than 60 cable companies in southeastern Michigan alone that pick up the show," Martina said the program is popular with other states as well. The show is also seen in 38 other states.

"We found out that the show was being pirated and beamed to satellites. We thought about a lawsuit, but decided against it because of the added exposure we were getting," she said.

Martina's real name, by marriage, is Diane Turco and her husband, Ralph Patrick Turco, a former inspector detective for the Wayne County Sheriffs Department, is the executive producer for the Lifestyle show. Martina, just one of the five names under which she writes, has had many popular guests and co-hosts on her show. "We've had Tony Bennett, Natalie Cole, Glen Campbell, Charlie Daniels, Gordon Thompson, Tiny Tim and the Temptations. Locally, we have had Bob Talbert, Pete Waldmier, Tom Fox, Charlie Manos, Jerry Green, Hank Aguirre and Joe Glover," Martina has recently left the full-time newspaper and radio business because, "I have psychic abilities that require more of my time," she said. According to Martina, her abilities have helped her assist law enforcers, along with providing her with some unique experiences.

One of her successful predictions, according to Martina, involved a famous actor. "When I was on P.M. Magazine, I was asked to tell them something that was going to happen. I told them I had a vision of Burt Reynolds getting shot in the eye and blood coming out of his eye, but a different person being left in the hospital," she said. According to Martina, six days later, a man from P.M. Magazine called her and told her to get the morning paper. The event had unfolded, almost exactly as she had seen it, before it happened. "On Saturday, six days after the P.M. Magazine interview, Burt Reynolds was shot with a blank gun and there was blood covering his eye. Above him, a man fell off a scaffolding and was left in the hospital, after Burt Reynolds left the hospital, just like I said six days before," she said.

Along with her psychic endeavors, Martina and Turco have been working on a new television special, she said. "We have been working on a documentary on fear."

"We have interviewed people left for dead by Alton Coleman, a lady who thinks the government is out to get her, all kinds of people." The documentary will explain why fear is the most prevalent emotion. According to Martina, it's an overwhelming fact that has been documented. The documentary will air sometime in May, according to Martina.

Sherry Woodard

TV host seeks national fame

By some standards, Canton resident Sherry Woodard has reached one of the top levels of her profession. She is a journalist with her own talk show at WKBD TV 50.

The audience for the program stretches all the way to the Upper Peninsula, as well as parts of Indiana and Ohio, thanks to the magic of cable television.

"There are people in the profession who have said to me, 'You're only 26 and you have your own talk show. What more do you want?'" Tons more, Woodard responded.

The talk show she hosts is, "Morning Break" which airs live, weekday mornings at 10:30 a.m. "Right after 'Happy Days,'" Woodard said, giving herself a plug.

"I enjoy doing the show. I believe I do it well and I have a lot of fun at it. But one day I want to sit in Peter Jennings chair, or I want to cover Sam Donaldson's beat," she said. "I have bigger plans for my career."

Asked what it feels like to be famous—at least on a local level—Woodard responded with a chuckle.

"I don't think of myself as famous at all. Maybe when I get to the network, then I'll have some degree of fame."

"I think of myself as more of a local media type, or as my friends at Associated Newspapers are so fond of saying, a 'TV personality,'" she said.

Some of the most notable people Woodard has interviewed have been "Cosby Show" star, Tempest Bledsoe, movie star Steve Guttenberg, ("Cocoon" and "Diner") and former automaker John DeLorean.

"Now there's a person who could sell alligator shoes to a crocodile," she said, recalling her meeting with DeLorean.

In addition to her duties at channel 50, Woodard also works as a staff writer at Associated Newspapers.

"People tend to be surprised that I work two jobs," she said. "The show is a part time position, believe it or not. Between the two jobs, I have one-and-a-half jobs."

When she is out and about covering the Canton beat for the "Canton Eagle," or as she goes about the business of running errands in the township, the talk show host is occasionally "spotted by a fan."

"Whether they like me or not, if they recognize me in public, then I call them a fan."

"It's funny when people spot me because usually they just stare. Sometimes I'll check my underwear to make sure it's not showing before I realize that they probably recognize me from the show," Woodard said. Her spontaneity and wit are two trademarks she has brought to "Morning Break."

"People usually tell me, 'You look so much better in person.' I guess that's a compliment," she laughed. Woodard and her husband live in an apartment in a newly constructed complex on Lilley Road. They chose to live in Canton, she said, because it is halfway between Channel 50 in Southfield and her husband's job in Monroe at the Fermi II nuclear plant.

Ben Perkins

Private eye hits hard

Ben Perkins' fame as a private investigator goes far beyond the city of Belleville. Although not as well known yet as a Mike Hammer or a Magnum, P.I., Perkins has a style of his own and a success rate to match his more famous counterparts.

Perkins drives a '71 Mustang, smokes cigars, collects expensive toys—an ultralight plane, motorcycle, stereos and videos, and has an eye for women.

When Perkins isn't involved in his detective work, he can be found at the 300-unit Norwegian Woods apartment complex in Belleville. Perkins, who is the maintenance manager of the complex, delegates his duties to his staff when he takes on a case.

The private investigator took a long, rocky road before assuming his present role. Even before he graduated from high school—the first in his family to do so, Perkins worked the graveyard shift at the Ford Motor Co. Rouge Plant. As a cocky and somewhat arrogant youth, Perkins drifted into the job of "liaison man" for the union. He traded his work clothes for a suit and performed some chores he described as "discreet and sensitive." When labor racketeering charges put his boss in jail, Perkins was left without a job. It was at this time that he started doing maintenance duties "on a temporary basis" at the apartment complex and worked his way up to overseeing the maintenance of the pools, racquetball and tennis courts, golf course and marina. Perkins admits that free rent was his major incentive, but he also enjoys rubbing elbows with the Yuppies who reside at Norwegian Woods.

His duties, which included being chief of security, led to his becoming a private investigator. First, he was asked to locate a missing spouse, then it there were other marital problems, runaway kids and personal protection. Perkins also has done corporation security, courier work and credential verification. However, it is the challenge of a treasure hunt or a hot chase that Perkins enjoys most—and, incidentally, is best at.

The private eye collects a $250 per day fee plus expenses, but since jobs don't come often enough for Perkins to support himself in style, he continues to keep his job at the Belleville apartment complex on the shores of Ford Lake.

Perkins has been described as a man "who uses rules when he can and breaks them when he has to." Nonetheless, he is a man that can be counted on to do his job and to bring back results. He was hired by a Bloomfield Hills widow, for example, because she felt he was "the only man I can trust to bring me $150,000 in cash money without helping yourself to the goodies."

If something about Perkins doesn't ring true, it is because the Belleville private eye is a fictional character created by writer Rob Kantner of Westland. Even though he is not real—to anyone other than Kantner—Ben Perkins has brought a measure of fame to Belleville in "The Back Door Man," the soon-to-be-published, "The Harder They Hit," and several short stories.

Commute to UM-Dearborn and save thousands of dollars

A quality education doesn't have to be expensive

At nationally prominent private institutions, the cost of earning a four-year degree, including room and board, can exceed $12,000 a year.

At comparable public residential campuses in Michigan, the cost for one year of college averages $6,000.

The University of Michigan-Dearborn's total costs, including tuition, fees, transportation, and books, are $3,500 a year.

Students can commute to UM-D, take advantage of high academic standards, and still participate in the numerous cultural, intellectual, athletic, and recreational opportunities on campus, in the metropolitan area, and at U-M Ann Arbor.

Money saved by living at home can provide the resources to pay for these enriching opportunities. These savings can also make the next step to graduate or professional study a lot easier.

To learn more about UM-D, call for a prospectus and an appointment for a confidential admissions evaluation.

Getting into a STEW

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

Invited some good friends over last weekend and while on the phone extending the invite was asked the usual, "What are you preparing?" When I responded with "stew," the phone went silent for what seemed to be forever. Let's face it, most folks don't go to a chef's house to slosh stew.

Recently, however, the stewing rage is again resurfacing. Personally speaking, I can't say I remember it sinking. The Janes Gang was raised on stew. Later on, in cooking school, stew was called ragout, paprikash and goulash. Now again, "stew" seems to be the proper colloquial term to identify a savory blend of potatoes, vegetables and the most tender meat you can sink your mouth into. Think about it... what else can be made ahead, reheated, mistreated and still come out tasting lovely? Most folks think that just because stew is so reliable it doesn't belong on the tables of the food connoisseur. To them I say "Let them eat liver!"

Mama Janes used to get out the old pressure cooker and pre-cook an English balde-cut roast that couldn't have set her back more than $2 then, and with a few vegetables and potatoes and some of the best bread-soaking gravy ever, a hearty meal was offered to all. Some nights we dined "fancy style" and served the stew over rice or noodles. This wasn't instant rice and boxed noodles but rice soaked and washed 10 times so the closet thing to stickiness was the gum on my bedpost.

Noodles were homemade, rolled and cut by hand. After the family chowed down on the stew and its hearty filling, mama would cook the gray and make "sliders" (no, not the 32 cent burgers but homemade dumplings that were cooked in the gravy). I get goosebumps just thinking about it! No wonder I have to watch my cholesterol now. Enough reminiscing.

While interesting herbs and spices, fresh vegetables and the discreet use of wine can make a fabulous stew, the true success lies solely in the method of cooking. A stew that has boiled on high power with as much agitation as a washing machine will cook no faster than one gently urged on the simmer setting. Everyone knows that boiled meat will prove to be tough and stringy and the gravy will be muddy with the flavors "boiled out."

Always simmer with wine for several hours so that the true taste of the vino can "marry" the remaining flavors into a rich, happy family. Of course, other liquids can be used for braising, such as beer, cider, broth, and fresh vegetable juices.

Now, I'm not talking crock-pot cookery here folks, however, such an electrical contraption is acceptable when you just can't get your hands on a big, old, heavy, cast-iron Dutch oven. Le Creuset makes an affordable enameled cast-iron Dutch oven that not only makes the best stews but can double for just about anything from a casserole to a soup pot.

It is recommended that the "skin" that forms on the top of the pot while cooking be removed. Allowing a large pot to simmer for hours will not only reduce this so-called "skin," but it also will surface an oil or grease slick. A gravy ladle or bent over-sized kitchen spoon works best to remove this without the overmixing that could easily turn a tender pot of stew into barbecue helper. When it comes to thickening, I personally don't feel the need to make everything as thick as 20W 50 motor oil. Some people like a substantial sauce and use a roux to accomplish this. Mama sufficed with dissolving flour in milk and whisking through a sieve so as not to get any lumps. I guess if it were truly necessary, I would thicken with some cooked, pureed vegetables or incorporate the silky-rich taste of cream and eggy yolks. Whatever your preference, fork-tender meat and vegetables in a luscious sauce can be an easy accomplishment to a busy cook. In the stew pot, if not in mathematics, the whole is often more than the sum of the parts.

Bon Appetit!

Perisk cooks up career

When Kathy Perisk and her husband dine out, it's strictly a professional experience, and only in the interest of furthering her career expertise, or so she says with a distinct twinkle in her eye.

For the past two years she has taught in the Culinary Arts Department of the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center. "I like to see what other restaurants offer. I constantly seek new and creative cooking ideas for teaching," she said, noting her professional interest in the epicurean accomplishments of restaurants she and her husband, Barry, visit.

Perisk has taught for 13 years in the Wayne-Westland School District. During her tenure at a junior high school, she instituted a school restaurant. Two years ago, she joined the staff at the vo-tech program.

She graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a degree in home economics. In order to accept the Vo-Tech position, she worked 2,000 hours at several hotels including the Hyatt, Mayflower and Win Schuler's.

"The principle is the same but there's a big difference between home economics and culinary arts. You learn the basics in home economics. You learn quantities with culinary arts. Four or five of our kids a year go on to a college program. I only wish more would," she said.

Ticket are now on sale for the five performances of the Belleville High School production of "Anything Goes," which will be staged on April 1 2, 3, 4, 10 and 11.

The play is the first major musical to be presented at the high school since 1979. Some 100 students and 30 staff members are participating on stage or behind the scenes to present the 1930s musical comedy. The song and dance show features 14 musical numbers by Cole Porter.

The musical is directed by Karen Hunchberger with Glenn Curtis as technical director, Louise Williamson as producer, Gwen Buege, art and scenery painter, Jan Oliver, choreography, Rod Soja, scenery construction, Sue Stahl and Jeff Vogie, music, and Mona Salisbury, costumes.

Cast members include Ken Morse, John Pomann, Ian Defibaugh, Tom Mayer, James Karolyi, Stacy Muller, Nellie Browning, Matthew Copeland, Karin Oliver, Walter Rochowiak, William Kosidlo, Rebecca Rocha, Anthony Kosiba and Richad Marr.

The high school players have staged eight Broadway musicals and four dramas including "Mame," "Harvey," "My Fair Lady," "West Side Story," and "The Miracle Worker."

In past years, according to Hunchberger, the productions have been known for elaborate, professional and realistic sets and excellent costumes, music and production details.

Tickets may be purchased at the high school on weekdays between 3 and 4:30 p.m. and on performance night beginning at 6:30 p.m. The tickets also may be purchased by writing to Belleville High School Productions, 501 West Columbia.

Sumpter plans Country Fest

Plans for the annual Sumpter Country Fest, slated for July 31, Aug. 1 and 2, include a variety of events.

According to Sumpter Township Clerk Joan Oddy, who is coordinating the event, the championship Flying W Rodeo will highlight the festival. The rodeo has won four out of six awards presented last year by the Michigan State Rodeo Association. Among the awards are recognition as the best rodeo of the year and the new rodeo of the year. Creating a lot of interest, Oddy said, is a bucking bull which has had only one rider remain on him for the full eight seconds in some 67 tries.

In addition to the rodeo, a "beeper ball" game will be sponsored by the Lions Club, there will be a chili cook-off and a softball tournament. A horseshoe pitching contest will feature competitions for amateurs and professionals.

Oddy said talent has been lined up for the annual battle of the bands, but additional bands are being encouraged to enter the competition on Aug. 2. The contest is open to blues, rock, country and all types of musicians.

Information on the country festival and the events are available by contacting the office of the township clerk.

Bingo slated every Friday

Bingo is slated at 6 p.m. each Friday at the Sumpter Community Center, 23501

The event is a fund-raiser which benefits public safety. Proceeds are donated to help fund the township police services.

The Michigan Lottery will move to a twice-weekly 6/44 Super Lotto game on May 13 replacing the present Wednesday 6/40 Lotto game. The following provides basic information about the game change.

Q: Why is the change being made?
A: Since its introduction in April of last year, Super Lotto has consistently outsold the 6/40 Lotto game when both had regular jackpot amounts. This change also will eliminate confusion regarding different jackpots for two games.

Q: What have been the average jackpot shares?
A: Through the end of February, the average Super Lotto jackpot share was nearly $3.5 million, while $1.7 million was the average 6/40 Lotto jackpot share.

Q: What was the largest individual Super Lotto prize?
A: Through February, two players each won $10 million prizes.

Q: Will twice-weekly Super Lotto create more large jackpots?
A: With longer odds in the game, Super Lotto has had more jackpot rollovers. Consequently, twice-weekly drawings should result in more frequent large jackpot amounts.

Q: What have been the average second and third prize shares in the Super Lotto game?
A: As of March 1, the average Second Prize share was $2,682, while the average Third Prize share was about $90.

Q: Does the game change mean I can no longer play for a full year with a subscription?
A: As a player service, the Lottery has begun a service for 26, 52 or 104 Super Lotto drawings. Subscribers in 6/40 Lotto have received refunds for unused portions.

Q: Will the multi-draw wagers still be offered for Super Lotto game?
A: Yes. Players wishing to buy tickets for 2 to 10 drawings at one time can do so at any Lotto retailer.

Q: Will there be a prize for matching three winning Super Lotto numbers?
A: The Lottery is developing plans for a special bonus drawing for players who match three numbers in Super Lotto. Details will be announced when plans are complete.

Q: Has Super Lotto helped increase the Lottery's donation to the state school aid fund?
A: Super Lotto helped increase Lotto play by 28 percent in the past fiscal year. Along with sales growth in other Lottery games, this provided a record $415 million to the School Aid Fund. This was equal to $130 per Michigan household.

For submitting a question answered in this column, Ann Dunn of Livonia will receive 50 tickets to the newest instant game, "Cash Deal."

If you have a Lottery question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

Pothole contest seeks 'best of worst'

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Chuckholes are "public enemy number one" for vehicles in the spring, according to Chuck Ray of Automotive Tire & Service.

Running over – and into – potholes knocks front ends out of alignment, ruins tires and wheels and can even damage the steering parts of cars, Ray said. The "real dillies" can even damage the car body itself, he said.

Most of the damage done by the chuckholes – the scourge of spring drivers – is either putting the vehicles out of alignment or damaging tires, Ray said. However, when spring rains fill up the holes with water and conceal their depth, unsuspecting motorists can find themselves literally "in deep trouble" which often results in costly damage.

Entries for these "best of the worst" potholes in the area are being sought for the Chuckhole Derby contest sponsored by Associated Newspapers.

Althought the newspaper cannot alleviate the annual road problems which emerge each spring, the three top winners in the contest will be awarded prizes to ease their "pothole phobia."

Nominations for the worst area chuckholes must be submitted by 3 p.m. March 25 to Chuckhole Derby, Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Mich. 48184.

"No More Pain!"

My husband hurt his back a few years ago from lifting. Every time he lifted something after that, he was hurting. One adjustment from Dr. Gregg takes care of the problem. If I didn't get treatments from Dr. Gregg, I wouldn't be able to move my head or neck. And I don't get throat infections like I used to. Thank God for Dr. Gregg.

"I Feel Great!"

I wasn't feeling very well and was looking for something to make me feel better when my boss suggested chiropractic care.

I went to the Gregg clinic and started improving after only two weeks. And now I feel great!

I have noticed other improvements as time goes on. I think chiropractic is the best thing since popcorn!

"I Couldn't Sleep... I Was Tired All Of The Time."

I was suffering from sinus trouble and had a hard time getting to sleep. I had to get up early for work, so I was tired all of the time.

My mother suggested I try a chiropractor, so I figured what do I have to lose.

Well after 4 days of treatment I started falling asleep faster and a short time after that my sinus problem was getting better.

I am now sleeping normal hours and feeling great. I will go to Dr. Gregg's clinic from now on!

"No Stiffness Or Pain!"

I came to the Gregg clinic for lower back pain that was unbearable. After several treatments the pain started to go away and I was able to get a good nights sleep.

Not only that but my neck pain, that medics said I would have to live with because of arthritis, also went away. You can't imagine what a relief it is to turn my head with no stiffness or pain.

I am beginning to think Chiropractic is God's way to healing, not pills, cutting or long recoveries.

Ann Arbor Pioneer dethrones Romulus

Reunited

Terry Mills, (seated at left) who led Romulus High to the Class A state basketball championship a year ago, and Grant Long, who played for the Eagles two years ago and is presently on the starting roster at Eastern Michigan University chat with their former coach, Al Wilkerson, (kneeling, at right) during the Class A district championship game at Wayne Memorial. Romulus successfully defended their district title. Wilkerson guided the Eagles to their only Class A state cage title before stepping down as head coach a year ago. He says he has no regrets for the move, but misses the excitement of the game. Romulus managed to win the district title and went on to the regionals where they staged an incredible fourth period rally before losing to Ann Arbor Pioneer on a last shot in the final eight seconds by Don Vann. ## 'Last shot' stops Eagles, Johnson's final heroics

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It just wasn't in the books for Romulus.

And, Ann Arbor Pioneer can be thankful it wasn't.

Rallying from a 12-point deficit in the fourth period, the defending Class A state champs came back to tie the game on Juan Street's drive lay-up only to lose in the final eight seconds on a 15-foot jump shot by Donald Vann who led Ann Arbor Pioneer to a thrilling 62-60 victory over the Eagles in the semi-finals of the Class A regional basketball playoffs last Tuesday at Eastern Michigan University.

Behind the superlative performance of senior playmaker Billy Johnson, who scored 38 points in his final prep cage appearance, Romulus fought an uphill battle all evening.

A last shot proved fatal to the Eagles who made it to the regionals via a victory at the Wayne Memorial district.

Trailing by 10 (48-38) going into what was to be their final eight minutes of the season, the Eagles staged a classic turnaround that few anticipated as Johnson refused to be stopped by the Pioneers who threw everything and everyone after him.

It was Johnson's short jumper with 40 seconds left that lifted the champs to within two points (60-58) then Street came up with a theft and drove from midcourt to score on a dog shot that tied the score at 60-all.

With eight seconds left, Pioneer coach Harry Hayward asked for and received a 'time out.' His strategy was to get the ball to Vann, who had been his hottest player of the evening.

Romulus decided to retreat and not challenge the Pioneers with a press, fearing that they would foul, according to Coach Dan Henry. "With eight second left, we figured that that would be the best strategy: To try to stop them at midcourt and hinder them as much as possible. If it had worked, then the game would have gone into overtime.

"We had the momentum... unfortunately, it didn't work."

Matched about equally in size and temperament, Romulus chose to play a zone against the Pioneers who took the initiative thanks to Vann's sharpshooting. Vann got six of his team's first 12 points, setting

"I am, and this city should be awfully proud of this team. They bowed out like champs."

— Dan Henry

up an individual scoring duel with Johnson who also countered with six in the initial period.

After Vann got his second basket and Casey Cammann canned two free throws to make it 6-2, Pioneer relinquished the lead only briefly, early in the second period when Grayan Wilson's basket tied the game at 12-all and Johnson came back with a jumper at 7:09 to break the deadlock, 14-12. Johnson was then fouled by Cammann and the Romulus cager made both ends of a one-and-one, moving his team ahead 16-12.

Vann rallied his team back. He made a pair of free throws

Salem falls

Wade leads Pioneers to regional title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Plymouth-Salem's dream season ended Friday evening on the floor of Eastern Michigan University at the hands of "cinderella team" Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Pioneer, overlooked in the Class A state ranking during most of the 1986-87 campaign and sporting a 14-8 won-lost record going into the championship game, got 32 points from fast-moving, hard-driving Keith Wade to shatter Salem 83-74 in the finals of the regional tournament at EMU.

Unstoppable Rick Taylor and durable Mike Hale kept Coach Bob Brodie and the Rocks in the midst of the battle right to the closing minutes. The southpaw Taylor sat out most of the second period due to personal fouls, but his sterling performance kept the outcome of the finals in doubt right to the final buzzer.

Look for ANP's All-Area cage team next week

He sustained his third foul with 1:30 left in the initial period and Brodie was forced to take the indispensable 6-7 senior out of the lineup and hold him for the second half.

Pioneer managed to increase its 18-15 first period lead to eight points (28-20) late in the second period before the Rocks came back on George Hanosh's three-point play and a pair of baskets by team captain Bryan Kearis. When the half ended, Pioneer had a 36-30 advantage.

Let's go back to the first period for a moment. Pioneers' Don Vann, whose 15-footer with eight seconds left sounded the knell for Romulus in the semi-final round, sank the first two Pioneer baskets. And it appeared he would be the dominant factor in the finals. He was, but Wade proved to be deadly after the initial minutes of play.

In the meantime, Taylor and Hale split seven and eight of the Rocks first eight points, respectively.

Six crucial Salem turnovers in the second period aided Pioneer which had problems finding the hoop. Jeff Justice's basket cut Ann Arbor's lead to 18-17 early in the second frame but George Freeman connected on a corner shot and he also canned two free throws and then Wade came through with a 3-point play to widen the gap to 26-18. At that point Brodie asked for a timeout and when play resumed Hale came back with a basket (26-20). Three consecutive turnovers didn't help Salem a bit. The Rocks recovered, though, thanks to Kearis who sank a

The last hurrahs

The 'last hurrahs' were heard last week in the gyms of Eastern Michigan University where defending Class A state champ, Romulus, and Plymouth Salem were wiped out of the regional playoffs by an aggressive Ann Arbor Pioneer club. In Westland, John Glenn also brought their season to an end as Detroit Chadsey handed the Rockets a tournament-ousting loss. The prep basketball season wouldn't be complete, however, without the Associated Newspapers' all-star team. Next week, the ANP sports staff will unveil its 1987 All-Area basketball lineup. junper, then came Hanosh's 3-point play, followed by another Kearis basket and with 1:23 to the intermission, the Rocks had closed to within a basket (30-28). But, then Wade woke up his team, driving in for a layup. He sank another after Kearis hit his third basket in less than three minutes but when Wade sank two free throws after Moore had missed a layup, Salem strolled into the locker room looking at a six-point (36-30) deficit. Hale's two free throws, followed by baskets by Taylor and Hale kept the Rocks close despite consecutive buckets from Pioneer center Casey Cammann.

Wade and Taylor then staged a scoring duel. The Pioneer sharpshooter sank four baskets while Taylor chipped in seven points to keep the outcome of the game in doubt. When the period ended, Pioneer had increased its lead to 58-50. Pioneer increased its margin to 15 points early in the fourth quarter again with Wade accounting for six points and with about five minutes left the Rocks were looking at what appeared to be an insurmountable obstacle. They trailed by 15 (70-55). But Cammann left the game with his fifth personal foul, opening up the center for the taller Salem quintet. Taylor and Hale went to work. Getting feeds from Kearis. and teammate Darrell Randle sank a basket and before the two teams broke for intermission Pioneer had a 31-26 lead. Johnson had six and Street: four of the Eagles' 12 third period points, while Vann countered with nine points to help his team widened the difference to 10 at the end of the third period, 48-38. It looked bleak for the state champs. Pioneer increased their lead by 12 in the fourth period before the miracle of miracles occurred. With 6:12 Romulus trailed 52-40. The champs proceeded to outscore their rivals 20-8 in the remaining minutes as Johnson hit two successive baskets and Street tapped in another. But George Freeman got a pair of free throws after Luther Shannon fouled him and made both. Johnson made it an eight point game again with a jump shot which drew immediate response by Vann who also connected. With a 10-point cushion, 56-46, Pioneer saw the bubble burst again it was Johnson with his pinpoint shooting. He made it 56-48 with a pair of free throws and, after a traveling violation against Pioneer, he again got the ball and the basket that cut the lead to six (56-50). With 3:45 to go, Pioneer decided on a timeout to discuss their problem. It helped as Wade came back with a basket to make it 58-50. But the champs apparently were not ready to give up. Johnson's basket again moved the Eagles within six (58-52), but Street then fouled Freeman who sank the front end of a one-and-one (59-54) and when Cammann fouled Wilson, the good-looking junior had an opportunity to cut into the Pioneer lead even further, however, he missed that chance. With one minute left, Street committed his second personal and Cammann took advantage only of the front end (60-54)...and then Wilson got his only field goal of the evening with 43 seconds left that turned the game into a four-point affair, 60-56, and the crowd stood on their feet. Shannon fouled Freeman who missed the free throw and the ball went over to Johnson and he did what he had to - scored a jumper. On the ensuing play, Pioneer got to midcourt where Street managed to steal the ball and drive in for the layup that pull the finishing touch on the Eagle rally. With eight seconds left...Vann turned the Romulus miracle into a nightmare. It just wasn't in the books - Vann got the ball on the left side of court and from about 15 foot out released it. The ball swooshed the nets, broke the deadlock and the crowds roared. When the groans and cheers were over, Pioneer had stopped and dethroned the defending state champs. Johnson was brilliant in the finale as he scored 16 of his 28 field goal attempts and made six of eight from the free throw line for 38 points. Street also was in double figures with 16. On the other side of the ledger, Vann had 23 other points to go along with his game-winning basket. Wade had 14 and Freeman finished with 11. Romulus made nine of 26 as compared to Pioneer's 11 of 33 from the field in the first half while the Eagles came back to better their percentage in the second half to .432 thanks to a 16 of 37 performance. They were 25 of 63 for the game; Pioneer finished with 24 of 56 from the field for .429. The loss left the Eagles with a 14-9 overall record for the 1986-87 campaign. "I am really proud of these kids," said Henry who also ended his first year as head coach. "They didn't quit when they were down by 12. It's the sign of a champ. I think all those who saw the game realize we had a team that we all can be proud of."

Salem erases Monroe from path

Outscoring Monroe 29-14 in the final quarter, Plymouth Salem crushed Monroe 76-57 in the semifinal round of the Class A regional basketball playoffs last week at Eastern Michigan University. The victory was Salem's ticket to the regional championship on Friday. Coach Bob Brodie's Rocks led from the first shot - a basket by guard Bryan Kearis who fired in a jumper from the top of the key - to the last basket. But the Western Lakes Activities Conference champs had their hands filled for three periods trying to shake the Wolverine 'A' League's runner-up. Monroe stayed in the game, trailing by four after the first eight (14-10) and also by four at halftime (33-29).

Moore, Taylor sank 12 points as the Rocks pulled with five (77-72) with 33 seconds left. But Lewis Andrews and Vann made four clutch free throws to seal the victory and the quarterfinal playoff spot for the Pioneers when Taylor sank his final baskets with 11 seconds left, the 21-3 season ended for Salem. Taylor, who was a perfect 11 of 11 in the semifinal victory over Monroe, made 13 of 19 against Pioneer from the floor, and also sank nine of 14 from the free throw line for a game high 35 points. Hale chipped in 23, making eight of 13 field goals and seven of nine at the foul line. Wade finished the evening with 32 while Vann scored 17 for the regional champs.

WAYNE COUNTY COON HUNTERS ASSN.

Local club caters to those who love the out-of-doors

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

It's there, way back in the woods and bushes of rural Romulus, on a dirt road that branches off of Wick Road, The Wayne County Coon Hunters Association.

And while the members may be interested in raccoon hunting, the club offers a great deal more than that to members. There is dog training including nearly 200 acres of land on which to train championship caliber hunting dogs, Sunday picnics and family festivals and Bluegrass music on Sundays. In short, it's a family oriented club with a great deal to offer those interested in the out of doors.

The club isn't new, in fact it has been there since 1954. According to William Payne, president of the Wayne County Coon Hunters, the membership is strong. "We have close to 100 members presently," he said. Club membership fees aren't costly, according to Payne. "We have an initiation and a $15 per year membership fee."

Payne, who has been president since 1982, said the club grooms dogs to become champions. "We have U.K.C. (United Kennel Club) or N.K.C. (National Kennel Club) rules in effect," Payne said the dogs compete for certain things. "The dogs compete for championship points. A dog must have 100 points and a first place finish to be considered a champion," he said.

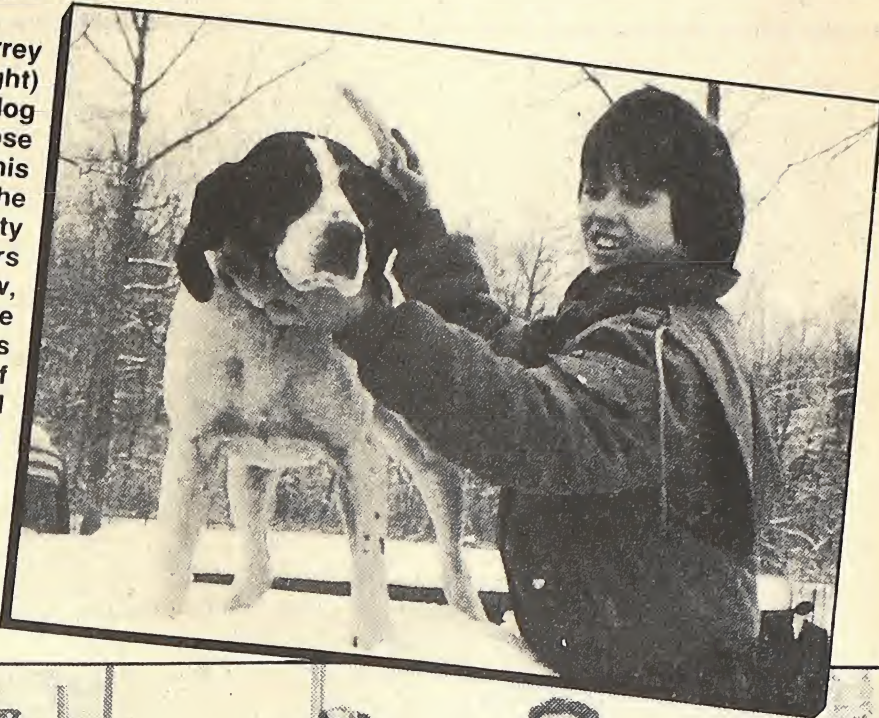

Dogs are also used in special hunts the club stages nine times a year, according to Payne. "We have a night hunt nine times a year, the hunt lasts from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m." The next night hunt, according to Payne, is a U.K.C. event on the third and fourth of April.

The Wayne County Coon Hunters Club offers a variety of things for prospective members, according to Payne. "Every Sunday we have a turkey shoot and a blue grass jam session," he said. The club also offers members a chance to see some of the latest things in the coon hunting business, and a chance to get these things. "We have three 'trade days' a year, one in April, May and June." The "trade days" allow members to trade whatever they want, Payne said. "The trade day gives members a chance to trade guns, dogs, whatever they want, it's kind of a flea market," he said.

The club is also very family and community oriented, according to Payne. "We have a club picnic every 4th of July," he said. Children's safety is another priority of the coon hunters, Payne said. "We cosponsor a safety program for kids, in cooperation with the city of Romulus, on hunters' safety." The club is not there to just kill all the raccoons possible, according to Payne. "The club is not set up on a kill basis, it's a sportsman club. We don't wear coonskin caps, when you wear stuff like that, you run into the anti-hunter people," he said.

The club, set back in the woods, is the same as any other business in Romulus, according to Payne. "We pay an industrial tax to have the club here in Romulus. We sponsor all kinds of programs for kids, we have to sponsor three or four programs to help pay for the building, we're not just coon hunters," he said.

The club is very well equipped for its purpose, to train and groom dogs to be champion hunters. On the grounds, which span about 11 acres, there is a 280 foot long swim pond. The pond is five feet deep and is used by the dogs to run raccoons through, as part of the training process. The pond was put in back in 1965, according to Payne, and is spring fed. The club building, which is also well equipped for the purpose of meetings and general gatherings, was constructed in 1976 and 77, according to Payne.

The club has its own band, Bluegrass Echoes, which provides the entertainment for the weekly Bluegrass Jam Sessions on Sundays. The band members include Tim Stacy who plays five string banjo, J.R. Harrington, lead singer and guitar player, Jennifer Stacy, fiddle player, Phillip Irich, bass player and tenor, Burl Stevens, lead guitar and baritone, Bobby Mead, guitar and all around person and Betty Harrington, sings lead and also solo.

A newly caught raccoon was found in a chimney before being brought to the club.

Why bankers don't talk about the rate on our home equity credit line.

We're where the money is.

Household Finance Corporation is the only Household Equity Corporation.
*Beginning June 1, the APR varies at 3.5 percentage points over prime. On January 1, 1987, this rate would have been 11.5%. Standard closing costs apply plus a processing fee of not more than $200.
**Subject to credit review of your income and the equity in your property.

Grass roots battle

Lawns need underground allies

There is a battle going on in your lawn: soil micro-organisms are in a life-or-death struggle. But grass has some special underground allies according to Myron and Rita Hart, owners of Sweetbriar Landscaping. Some soil micro-organisms can help plants, others sicken or kill plants.

Some of the soil micro-organisms make specific nutrients available to plant roots. In effect, they supply fertilizers. Best known are the nitrogen-fixing bacteria that live on the roots of the plants. Other microbes are good guys that attack the bad guys that cause plant diseases such as the fusarium type.

Soil microbes help put soil nutrients into usable conditions for plants. Besides making simple nutrients available, some microbes might also stimulate plant vigor. Well-nourished individuals - whether plants or people - are less susceptible to disease problems than those that are under-nourished. Thus, microbes that boost fitness help to decrease plant diseases even without attacking a specific pathogen (a disease-causing organism).

Many lawn diseases are caused by the presence of thatch. Thatch acts like a sponge. Water remains in the thatch creating an ideal home for pathogens to propagate and cause disease problems.

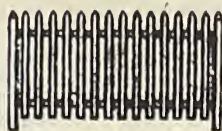

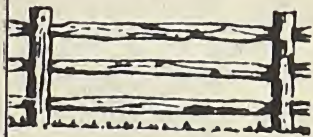

When soil micro-organisms are not present to work the soil, the soil under the grass becomes hard and compacted. When it rains or water is artificially applied the water runs off before the plants receive the full benefit. Soon the live roots start to rise to the top of the soil for water. This is the start of thatch build-up.

Thatch reduces the amount of food that reaches the plants so the plants become weak and start to thin out. This gives weeds the opportunity to infest the lawn.

Up until now the best way to remove thatch was by mechanical operation (i.e. a power rake). This was a lot of work. Although it did remove a lot of thatch it did not cure the problem. We were treating the symptom not the cause. The soil was still hard and the roots still stayed up on top and the thatch started to build up all over again. Bio-Control helps reduce the thatch. Thatch reduction helps to decrease Fusarium type lawn diseases.

Weeds are top enemy of beautiful lawns

Lawns shouldn't contain weeds. They detract from the uniformity of the grass cover. Weed leaves are shaped differently than lawngrass leaves. They grow more rapidly than lawngrasses and produce flowers and seed heads that attract attention. Weeds that become conspicuous detract from the landscape beauty of residential and recreational settings. There is little satisfaction in mowing a weedy lawn because it doesn't look much better after clipping than before.

The adage that no two things can occupy the same place at the same time holds true for lawngrasses and lawn weeds. The best way to control weeds is to grow grass. A well-turfed lawn will have few weeds. Thin and weak lawngrasses are not competitive with weed seedlings and thus weeds predominate. So, good lawn care - proper use of water, fertilizer, lime; control of insects and diseases; mowing at the right height and frequency; and prevention of soil compaction and thatch formation - is the first line of defense against weeds.

Once weeds are found in the lawn they must be properly identified and their growth habits understood. Only then can the proper herbicide be selected and used to obtain control. Several weed control chemicals and formulations are available. Some may be applied as a granular material often with lawn fertilizer. Others are liquid and sprayed on the lawn. Selective control of weeds with little or no injury to lawngrasses is an important feature of most herbicides. Check your garden supply center for recommended product to control the following common weeds.

Knotweed

Knotweed is an annual. Seed germinates in early spring and can easily take over where grass is thin and weak. It does particularly well on infertile compacted soil. It may be mistaken for grass in the early seedling stage, but soon its mat-like growth spreads out below the clipping height on the mower as it becomes dominant. Best control can be obtained from use of a weed killer early when it is in the three-four leaf stage. As a mature weed, setting flowers and seed, it becomes woody. Chemical control is difficult at this time. It is best to treat it in the spring. Use dicamba.

Chickweed

Chickweed is an annual. It grows well on poorly-drained soil and in shady locations. It is not as competitive when temperatures are high. Roots are weak and shallow, but are numerous as the weed spreads and roots at the joints along each runner. Numerous seeds are produced that germinate in early spring. Chemical control during the spring is effective. Use MCPP or dicamba.

season annual or as a short-lived perennial. It has a shallow taproot, clover-like leaves and small yellow flowers. Where there are only a few weeds, hand removal is most effective. Usually repeated applications of herbicide are necessary for control. Timing of treatment to coincide with active growth is helpful. Use dicamba.

Dandelion

Dandelion is a perennial. It grows actively during cool weather and develops a deep tap root that makes it very persistent and difficult to cut out of the lawn. Flowers start to form in early spring and continue off and on to late fall. Their elevated yellow display and subsequent white ball of seed make them among the most undesirable of lawn weeds. Fortunately, they are easily controlled with herbicide during either spring or fall. Use 2,4-D.

Plantain

Plantain is a perennial. It grows vigorously during cool weather to form large leaves in a rosette type growth. These are oval-shaped with prominent veins. In early summer, seed heads form above the turf. These display a long column of seed that is unsightly. New seed heads reappear about as fast as mowing removes the old ones. Plantain is easily controlled by herbicides applied in either spring or fall when growth is active. Use 2,4-D.

Yarrow

Yarrow is a perennial. It has fine, delicate fern-like leaves and spreads by underground stems. An exceptionally-aggressive weed, yarrow can form dense patches that spread below the clipping height set on the mower. Where grown away from the lawn, yarrow reaches a height of one to two feet. Because of the fine lacy leaves, which are difficult to wet with herbicide, control is difficult and often requires repeated treatments. Use 2,4-D.

Buckhorn

Buckhorn is a perennial. It is vigorous during cool weather and forms a rosette of long, narrow leaves. In early summer, seed heads form above the turf that display cylindrical masses of seed on long unsightly stalks. About as fast as these are removed in mowing, new ones appear. Buckhorn is easily controlled by herbicides applied in either spring or fall when growth is active. Use 2,4-D.

Clover

Clover is a perennial. Some gardeners like it in the lawn and actually seed white clover into the turf. It is a legume that enriches the soil with nitrogen. Clover spreads by both above and below ground stems that root easily under cool moist conditions. It grows below the clipping height set on the mower and easily crowds out weak lawngrasses. Characteristic leaves and white to pinkish flowers are easily identified.

Spring blooms

There is more to the season than tulips and daffodils

A variety of sizes, shapes and colors and a wide range of blooming times make tulips one of the mainstays of the spring flower garden. But tulips are only one of many kinds of fall-planted, spring flowering bulbs that can grow and thrive in Michigan.

Horticulturists at Michigan State University suggest that home gardeners look beyond the common tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and crocus to discover a wealth of other spring-flowering bulbs. With a selection of spring-flowering bulbs in the landscape, you can have flowers from early spring through May.

Chionodoxa, or glory-of-the-snow, is one of the earliest flowering bulbs. The plants grow 6 to 9 inches tall and bear brilliant blue or white flowers. They grow in sun or partial shade.

Another early bloomer is eranthis, or winter aconite. These low-growing plants produce cup-shaped flowers in shades of yellow, sometimes while snow is still on the ground. The tubers like a well-drained soil but may die if they get too dry. They multiply rapidly.

Galanthus, or snowdrop, grows best in a cool, moist soil and full sun to light shade. The plants grow to 6 to 8 inches high and bear frosty-white, three-petal flowers.

The several types of anemone tend to do best in full sun and a deep, sandy soil with some organic matter mixed into it. In wet, poorly-drained soil, the tubers will rot. The star-shaped flowers of anemone blanda resemble daisies in shades of rose, blue and purple, plus white.

Crocus likes a well-drained soil and a sunny location. They do well in lawn areas if lawn mowing can be put off until the foliage has matured. Cutting off the grass-like crocus leaves will prevent the buildup of the bulb and result in poor performance next year.

Grape hyacinth grows 3 to 8 inches high and bears small, oval, white or blue blossoms in grape-like clusters. Like most other bulbs, grape hyacinth does best in well drained soil, with full sun or light shade.

The fritillarias have nodding, bell-shaped flowers that resemble upside-down tulips. Fritillaria imperialis (crown imperial) bears bright red orange or yellow blossoms at the top of a tall, slender stem topped by a tuft of green leaves. Fritillaria meleagris (snakeshead fritillaria) bears drooping, bell-shaped flowers in white or burgundy red. They do well in partial shade in rock gardens, flower beds and naturalized lawn areas.

Hyacinths are known for their spikes of waxy, fragrant blossoms in pastel pink and blue, yellow and white, through dark blue, red and even orange are available, too. They like a well-drained soil and full sun, though they do not thrive in dry soil. Unlike many spring bulbs, hyacinths decline quickly after the first year and need frequent replacing.

Horticulturists at Michigan State University suggest that home gardeners look beyond the common tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and crocus to discover a wealth of other spring-flowering bulbs

Daffodils are quite long-lived but will not tolerate water-logged soil. The all-yellow daffodil that most people think of as the standard type is only the beginning — daffodils today come in a wide range of colors and sizes. The six petals that form the backdrop for the ruffly-edged trumpet may be white or shades of yellow. The trumpets may be long or short or in between and in white, shades of yellow or red-orange, or some combination of these. Double flowers and even faint pink-trumpeted daffodils are available. Daffodils will grow in sun or partial shade.

Selecting tulip varieties by their blossoming time can extend the season of bloom from March or early April through May. Single and peony-like double tulips, parrot tulips with their ruffly flowers, lily-flowered tulips, the multicolored Rembrandts and the large, oval-shaped Darwin hybrids are among the choices. All colors and many striking color combinations are available.

The earliest blooming tulips are the dwarf Kaufmannianas and the larger Fosteriana tulips, which appear in late March or early April. The large Darwin hybrids are the dominant mid-season tulips. The lily-flowered, peony-flowered and single late tulips bloom later in May.

Tulips tolerate most soils if they're well drained. Mid-season and late tulips will last longer if planted in partial shade.

The most impressive display occurs when bulbs are planted in beds or clumps of all one color rather than in single rows or mixtures. A rule of thumb for larger bulbs such as tulips is to plant at least dozen of each variety.

Catalogs of spring-flowering bulbs give more details on planting and offer still other bulb choices for Michigan gardens. More information on flower gardening in general and bulbs in particular is available from your county Cooperative Extension Service office.

Water trickles into new landscaping plans

It began as just a trickle.

Gardeners interested in making their gardens more than just an arrangement of patios, trellises, flower beds and furniture added basins of water in the Japanese tradition of tsukubai – a hollowed basin that collects rainwater for drinking.

Other gardeners went a step further and installed running water features – tiny streams that dribbled from bamboo pipes into a pond; larger streams that flowed over rocks and pebbles to create a joyous bubbling sound; stepped ponds connected by miniature waterfalls.

Now, water gardens flood the landscaping scene with complex arrangements of waterfalls and ponds, rocks and bridges, plants and animals.

Of course, many water-scaped gardens retain their simplicity, displaying nothing more than a stone, a plant and a hint of water.

But water gardens increasingly are so much more.

A gush of water powered by a hidden motor bursts from a hillside and carves a stream between a carpet of ferns on the sloped end of one yard.

In another garden, a dry stream bed of colored stones set in concrete shines in the sun. With the twist of a hidden sprinkler valve, water gurgles down the shallow bed.

A series of stepped ponds trickle down into each other through narrow rock-laden streams over which wooden bridges lie. Standing on the bridges, you look down at colorful fish and gorgeous water lilies.

Whether you seek the mesmerizing murmur of flowing water or the clear, cool reflectins of a still pond, a water garden can be a source of endless enjoyment. It can provide a hideaway from a hectic daily schedule, be an aesthetic focal point or hold a collection of unusual aquatic plants and accompanying animal life.

According to nursery descriptions, the following plants are hardy selections for water gardeners just getting their toes wet: water lily and aquatic iris, which come in a variety of colors; water hyacinth, which has violet flowers; water lettuce, which looks like an open lettuce plant; mosquito fern, a moss-like free-floating plant; horsetail, an ornamental bushlike perennial herb; water hawthorn, with fragrant white flowers; and water purslane, an underwater foliage plant.

Iris hybrids are part of flower trivia

Growers of tall bearded irises are hard put to find names for all their new hybrids. The registry of these flowers, begun in 1896, now contains more than 40,000 different names.

Florence, Italy, is called "The City of Lilies."

Depending on your preferences, you can organize a floral water garden on the basis of color of bloom or species of plant – there are many beautiful ponds dedicated to several varieties of water lilies.

If your primary concern is to create not a collection of plants but a collection of fish, such as koi, be prepared for a bit more work. To succeed, sunlight and water temperature should be controllable and there must be proper biological filtration, according to Bill Keele, an authority on exotic fish quoted in an article in San Diego Home & Garden magazine.

He recommends a high-intensity water circulation pump as a biological filter, taking care to choose a pump properly proportioned to the size of the pond. Ideally, the pump should run 24 hours a day so that the water will be completely, continuously recirculated.

For fun and a lot less maintenance, create a pond that will attract a frog collection for kids. All it takes is a shallow pool (about a foot or two deep) surrounded with rocks to provide shelter for newts and frogs, according to Barbara Damrosch, author of "Theme Gardens" (Workman Publishing, $22.50). Floating aquarium plants provide hiding places for goldfish.

According to the San Diego Home & Garden article, if you're starting a water garden from scratch – any type of water garden – choose a site with lots of sunlight and no leaf litter from above.

The pond should be protected from water running into it from other parts of the garden either by its location or by a border around the perimeter. You don't want it to become contaminated by the leachings of fertilizer or pesticides.

You can use almost any material for the bottom of the pond, the article said. Concrete is the longest lasting and most versatile medium, but it requires a water seal. Plastic liners are inexpensive and last up to 10 years with care to keep sharp objects away from the liner. Fiberglass is conveniently preformed and durable, but expensive.

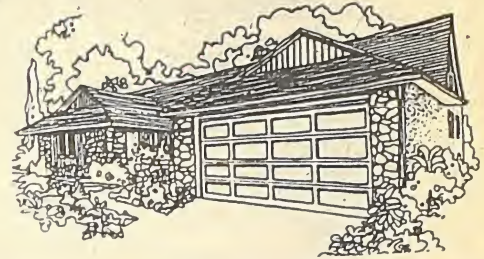

If all else fails, convert your swimming pool. But remember that the ideal depths for ponds are quite shallow – only 1 to 3 feet deep – so you'll have to forsake your laps for your lilies.

Poison ivy vines have been known to grow a foot thick and climb to 100-foot treetops.

The dandelion came to America from Europe soon after the first colonists arrived, possibly in the earthen ballast carried by many ships.

Furniture for fun

Decorate the garden
for outdoor comfort

If you consider your garden another living space, an extension of your house, then it's easy to decorate the area to make it a comfortable retreat from the world.

Your "garden room" needs something to cover the ground, something to define and decorate the walls, something to modify the light. You'll require seating, lounging and storage areas, you may want to add something to cook on or something to play with.

Once you decide how you want to use your garden, you can choose from any number of additions that will serve your needs and desires beautifully.

The furnishings of your garden can be as simple as a couple of lawn chairs or a hammock strung between two trees. Or it can be as complex as a series of redwood terraces with a gazebo, Jacuzzi and elaborate fountains.

The easiest way to establish a well-dressed garden - no matter what its size - is to first define the area as a room. Begin with the flooring. If a traditional "wall-to-wall" green lawn doesn't suit your taste, break it up with redwood decking. This creates a sense of levels, personalizes the space and visually ties the area to the house. A concrete slab can be added as the basis of patio, although materials such as unglazed Mexican tiles and bricks are more popular. Both materials can be laid in any of many pleasing patterns from herringbone to circular arcs. Both materials wear well and mellow with age.

The ground itself can be covered with something other than grass. Ferns and moss can be used in shady spaces. If you have an aversion to the color green, you need not use plants at all. Make your garden flooring out of stones, pebbles, gravel, sand and rocks.

The edges of the property are the walls of your garden room. Shrubs form hedges that block out noise and the view of passersby. Reinforce the shrubs with metal to make them more stable and less penetrable, and intersperse them with wooden gates.

If you have a standard blank brick wall, enhance it with vines. Trellises can be placed against the walls to train the vines, or replace the wall with a traditional split rail, picket fence or rock wall. Wrought-iron fences are perfect for Victorian homes.

Carefully planted trees also can create a wall - and a ceiling that blocks out the sun. Planting trees for shade will greatly alter the look and feel of your garden space over the years. If you want immediate - and structural - control over lighting conditions, consider wooden lattices, with or without climbing vines, covered terraces, glassed-in or walled spaces and sun rooms. A patio can be covered with a retractable canvas cover that will add hours of use to an overly-sunny area. Large canvas patio umbrellas create a temporary ceiling that shields a luncheon or a quiet afternoon of reading from the sun.

Now that the area has been defined, what goes into your garden room? Begin with seating and lounging furniture.

Furniture of wrought iron, sometimes with fabric seats, gives the garden a traditional look. This goes well with tables made of marble or with glass tops that are tempered and long wearing. Mexican-style furniture made of leather and woven wood adds a Southwestern feeling. Chairs and tables made of bent twig, cane and rattan emit a rustic charm. For a more contemporary look, use plastic and canvas.

If you live in an especially wet climate, use materials that will not rot or mildew, or be prepared to remove furniture during the rainy season. Metal chairs covered with long-wearing plasticized paint are a durable choice.

For lounging, consider the tried and true. These devices of respite include the hammock, available in canvas or string; the chaise, perfect for a good stretch and the swing. The traditional arc swing is a wonderful addition in nostalgia. And freestanding metal gliders also are in vogue again.

Now, decorate your space with extras that suit your needs. With a little extra money to spend, consider adding a water feature. The sound of splashing or running water has been considered a necessity for peaceful gardens since the time of the ancient Persians. Choose from fountains of metal, ceramic and stone, all ready to install above ground with very little external piping necessary.

Or, create an in-ground pool, pond, waterfall or series of stepped pools. With the addition of water lilies, koi and other Oriental fish, water features can become the focal point of the garden. A water feature also can become a personal retreat - a hot tub placed in a terrace or a gazebo covering a Jacuzzi could be the resting spot you've hoped for.

And don't forget the additional touches - birdbaths and bird feeders, sculptures of reclining figures or Buddha, sundials and artistic containers filled with plants.

Plants can be placed in containers as mundane as painted rubber tires or old wooden wagons treated against rot. Or, they can be displayed in architectural containers that add a sense of dignity and history to your space. Large containers of clay, plastic and wood can alter the way the garden looks by adding sculptural volume and well-placed color.

You might want to add a shed to hold all your garden furnishings, equipment and playthings, and then just enjoy. You've added thousands of square feet to your home. You have a well-dressed garden room.

Concrete ideas for outdoor garden beauty

Concrete has come a long way from the drab, gray slab. A wide variety of colors, textures and patterns can make a concrete sidewalk or patio into a strikingly attractive part of an overall landscaping scheme.

The possibilities are unlimited. Color can be added by using pigments or by exposing the stones in the concrete mix. Textures can vary from a smooth, glassy polish to the roughness of crushed stone. And imprinted patterns bring a whole new dimension of flat surfaces.

Stamped or patterned concrete can have the look and feel of wood, brick, tile or slate. The patterns are stamped into semi-hardened concrete with special imprinting tools, usually made of plastic or aluminum. A number of firms offer these specialty tools in a variety of patterns, such as fish-scale, brick or cobblestone. Rubber mats are also used to imprint concrete with the texture of wood.

Or an actual rough-sawn plank can imprint a wood-grain texture. Imaginative do-it-yourselfers can achieve interesting effects without specialized tools. Fresh concrete can be broomed, brushed or imprinted with a stamp of your design. A random flagstone pattern can be grooved into the concrete with a brick mason's jointer or a short length of copper pipe. Leaves, cans or any household item with an interesting texture can impart an attractive finish.

Color embellishes either plain or patterned surfaces. Color can be used with textures, patterns and dividers for a variety of finishes. There are several ways to color concrete. One technique is to mix a mineral pigment throughout the batch of concrete. Batch-mixing the color may produce a pastel shade. This is because adding too much pigment weakens the concrete.

Deeper colors are possible with the dry-shake method – sprinkling powdered, prepackaged coloring material onto the surface of the concrete right after the slab is placed. As the concrete is finished normally, the pigment gets floated in the top 1/8-inch or so of the surface.

A concrete mix made with white portland cement and light-colored sand will produce cleaner, brighter colors. The normal gray color of portland cement sometimes tints the added color.

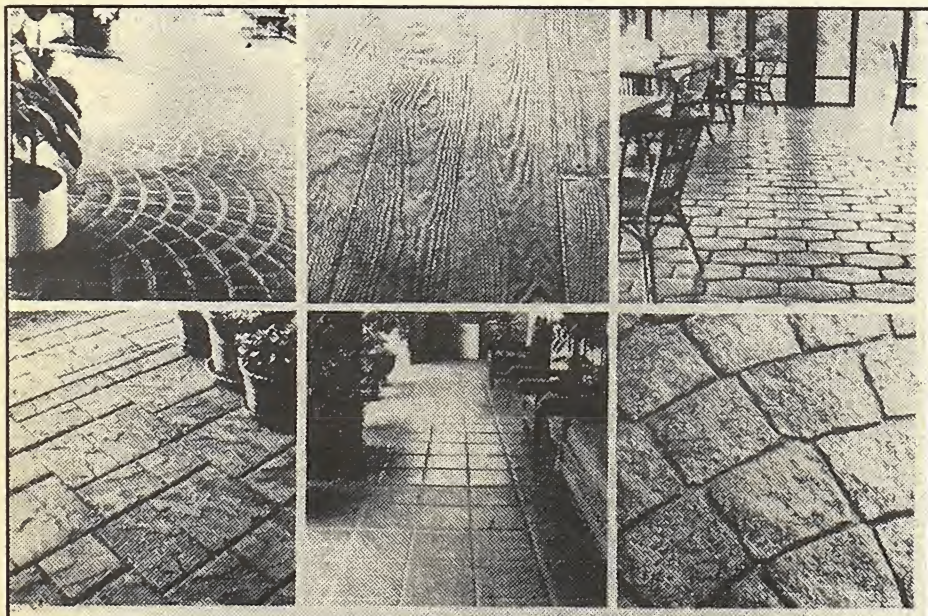

Concrete also can be stained, dyed or painted. But it's sometimes difficult to obtain uniform color with stains and dyes, and some paints can wear away quickly in heavy traffic areas.

The more traditional, decorative finish is exposed aggregate. This is when the aggregate – the stone or gravel in the concrete mix – appears at the surface. The aggregate is exposed by brushing away the mortar at the surface when the concrete begins to set up.

The final color and texture will depend on the type of aggregate. Gravel, marble, granite chips or special colored rocks create attractive finishes. To cut costs, such special aggregates can be seeded into the surface rather than mixed throughout the concrete. The resulting exposed aggregate finish is slip-resistant and immune to weather and wear.

Divider strips and borders separate concrete into panels – creating patterns and delineating different finishes and functions. Commonly used materials include wood, clay, brick, plastic, metal or concrete masonry.

Wood dividers are usually made of rot-resistant lumber such as redwood, cedar or cypress. The wood should be primed with a clear sealer. Mask the top surface with tape to protect it from stains and abrasions during construction.

Patterned, textured or colored concrete can be used anywhere an attractive, durable finish is needed – indoors or out. These patterns were stamped into the semi-hardened concrete with special imprinting tools.
